

Guardian Angels may begin Halifax patrols Saturday

The Halifax chapter of the Guardian Angels will graduate its first eight members Saturday, and the international, volunteer crime-fighting group will likely do its first patrol that night.

The graduation ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. where they've been training for the past three months — Grandmaster Woo Yong's Tae Kwon Do on Hood Street.

The group's founder, Curtis Sliwa, will come to Halifax from New York for the event. Because he always joins new chapters on their first patrol, it's likely they will hit the streets Saturday night, according to local organizer Fred Folz.
