A local organization invites Guardian Angels to help the women of Laredo.

The Guardian Angels safety patrol, teach women about defending themselves in the event of an assault.

The group from Dallas was at Trautmann middle school speaking to women and offering training classes.

They say women need to realize that they truly have a power.

“We don’t want to go into panic attack or get in the way of police we are here to create more awareness for women. “

“Its incredibly important because there can never be enough police ... sexual assaulters don’t think you’re going to resist... don’t think you’re going to bump and run ... and women we try to teach how criminal thinks and they think and how they can free themselves. “

The group will also be visiting Nuevo Laredo in the next few days.
