Presents this

Citation of Merit

to

THE ROCK BRIGADE

In recognition of its diligent efforts to create a cleaner, more beautiful Bronx.

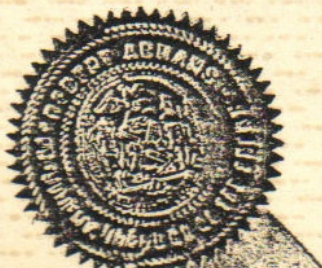

Last winter, a group of employees of McDonalds on Fordham Road formed an organization called the Rock Brigade with the aim of cleaning The Bronx's busiest commercial street.

Under the guidance of project director Curtis Sliwa and with the cooperation of the Sanitation Department, these young volunteers meet early every Saturday and Sunday morning to clean a major section of Fordham Road.

As the Rock Brigade continues its ongoing campaign, we can point with pleasure to a cleaner Fordham Road, and we can hope that others will be inspired to establish similar programs in their own communities.

The Rock Brigade is a hard working group of Bronx teenagers whose commitment to serving the neighborhood where they work is a source of pride to all of us.

The residents of The Bronx join me in saluting the members of the Rock Brigade for the long hours and tremendous energy they have devoted to improving the environment and boosting the spirit of the Borough.
